WORSHIP CALENDAR

Our current sermon series is about love. We'll be taking a deep dive into what love is and why the "greatest of these is love". In addition to a sermon, each week we will share an exercise which we expect everyone to do as a way to help train our 'love muscles.'

Oct 17 ~ Learning to trust. Speaker: Mark

Oct 24 ~ Love series takes a break to welcome George and Tobia Veith

Oct 31 ~ Being vulnerable and transparent. Speaker: Virginia

Nov 7 ~ From boredom to laughter. Speaker: Mark

LOVE EXERCISE #2

Give someone a gift. This gift should be spontaneous but not random; something that is not expected or routine, but also something that is an expression of your love and appreciation for the person. The gift could be a physical object, a song, a blessing, a favour, reaching out to someone to express your gratitude.

If you need help thinking of a gift to give someone, spend some time meditating on God's love. Be filled with God's love and reflect on what you love about yourself. Spending time loving yourself will prepare you to share your love, and a gift, with someone else.

FROM the PASTOR ~ Virginia Gerbrandt Richert

What is worship? What role does music play in worship? What role does the leader play, or the participants? How does music add to a worshipful experience? And why do we worship the way we do?

These are common questions when thinking about worship, but they have come up in a new way for me recently as we have switched between pre-recorded and in-person worship services and back a few times over the past year. We have changed a few things in the way that we structure our worship services to make them fit into the online format and some of those changes have stuck. We have also encountered new challenges that require more creativity and collaboration. And one of those challenges is finding people to lead music in-person every Sunday.

As a result, I have been pushed to ask what role music plays in our worship? Is it important for the congregation to sing along, or be able to sing along? How significant is it that those leading music are live, in-person? Or how good or polished does the music need to be? What role does all this have in how we worship God?

I invite you to also reflect on these questions for yourself and for our congregation. And would welcome any of your thoughts. We will hopefully be trying some new things over the coming weeks and months in how we include music in worship. Please be gracious and patient as we navigate these waters together.

Today's sermon will explore four common misunderstandings of love and how we need to rethink our understanding of love in order to express a more Biblical and Godly love.

Misconception: Love is a feeling.

Corrective: Love is an orientation, a posture, an activity, an art.

Misconception: Love depends on the thing or person being loved.

Corrective: Love depends on our commitment, faith, and character.

Love requires practice, exercise, intention, and concentration.

Misconception: It is selfish to love yourself. Loving yourself is sinful.

Corrective: Loving yourself enables you to love others. Self-love is the opposite of selfishness.

Misconception: When there is love there is no conflict. The absence of conflict is a sign of love. Love avoids unpleasantness.

Corrective: Love seeks truth. Love addresses conflict in ways that honour one another.
